

5 Steps to Discovering Your Major and Career

YOU

Explore your interests, skills, values, and personality.

1 Gain a deeper understanding of your personality, interests, values and skills as they relate to majors and careers through the free TypeFocus assessment.

- Register your TypeFocus account here using Access Code "LSUBR2020".

2 Explore your interests further as they relate to majors and careers through the free FOCUS 2 assessment.

- Register your FOCUS 2 account here using Your Access Code "tigers" and your LSU email address, including @lsu.edu.

MAJORS

Discover potential majors and the careers they can lead to.

3 Review majors at LSU organized by interests. Consider using the LSU General Catalog to review the Degree Program for majors you are considering to see if the required courses sound interesting to you.

4 See careers related to each major by clicking What Can I Do With This Major? on this LSU Olinde Career Center website.

OCCUPATIONS

Consider the tasks, educational paths, environments, and salaries of different occupations.

5 Visit the O*NET and the OOH to learn more about occupations:

Click Advanced Search on the O*NET web page to explore occupations by interests, skills, values, and more.

Search for occupations you are interested in using the Search Handbook bar on the OOH web page, then select the How to Become One tab to learn about the educational path.

CAREER DECISION

Once you have taken the 5 steps above, work to secure experiences that will help you solidify your choice of major and career.

Arrange informational interviews and job shadowing to learn from professionals in careers you are interested in.

Use Handshake to search for internships and part-time jobs in the industries you are interested in.

Identify student organizations, volunteer opportunities, on-campus jobs in Handshake, and class projects that will help you build skills and Career Competencies related to your career of interest.

Want some one-on-one coaching in this process? Schedule an Exploring Majors and Careers appointment through Handshake or by email to career@lsu.edu.
