1. Your Responsibilities/Communication

You are responsible for knowing and understanding the information contained on this course website and for information distributed through class e-mails and the News Forum.

SLIS and LSU will communicate with you exclusively through your LSU/PAWS e-mail. If you prefer to continue to use your personal e-mail, you should forward all LSU e-mail to that account. You must also forward all Moodle mail.

1.1. How to Succeed in an Online Course

For many of you, this is your first course in many ways -- your first online course, your first graduate course, your first LIS course - and you're struggling to juggle school, work, and family. I can't help with the work and family, but I can provide some suggestions about managing school.

Graduate school is different from undergraduate. All graduate courses require more critical thinking and analysis, and much less memorization and recall. They require you to synthesize what you learn and then apply it in some way, either to a paper or a project or a discussion forum, only occasionally to an exam.

Because undergraduate LIS degrees are few and far between, this is the first time that most of you are being exposed to these principles, concepts, theories, and just basic facts. This makes it interesting and even exciting, but you may also feel overwhelmed with all of the new information.

Online courses are more difficult and more time-consuming than most people expect, for a variety of reasons, the primary one being that three hours a week are not spent sitting in a class, listening to a lecture and taking notes. Not only is your education more self-directed, you have to actually spend nine hours a week on the class. If you were like me as an undergrad, you knew that you could do pretty well by just going to class and taking notes, and reviewing before the exam, maybe skimming the textbook. Now, you have to set aside nine hours for reading, discussing, researching, and writing.

One mistake that students make is thinking that they can just put in nine hours on the weekend -- for the week that has just ended. Even if you have to do all of your work on the weekend, do it for the coming week, so that you will have time to wait for answers to questions, interlibrary loan materials, consultations with tutors, and proof-reading. Always be working ahead.

So, how to manage your time?

1. Go through the syllabus for every class and add any assignment due dates to whatever calendar you keep (if you don't keep a calendar -- start keeping one!). Also include any holidays. Keep only one calendar, whether it's electronic or paper, so that you can see your work, school, and personal life all in one.
2. Work out a daily and weekly schedule that blocks out nine hours per class -- specific hours and what you will do during that time. Prioritize according to how much each activity is worth. If discussion forums are each worth 3% of your final grade, spend 3% of your time and effort on them. If an assignment is worth 20% of your grade, give it 20% of your time and effort.

For example, set aside three hours on Saturday and three on Sunday for class reading and research/assignments for the coming week. Then, schedule three more hours during the week. Or schedule three hours a day three days a week. Or one hour a day Monday-Friday, and four hours on Saturday. Whatever works with your schedule. Do that for each class.

3. Plan ahead for working on assignments, even if it's only one hour a week at first. Break them down into steps, and take advantage of any time you have to work on each step, regardless of when the assignment is due. The reality is that you're never "finished" for the week, so if you finish the course readings in two hours, then spend the next hour on discussion forums. If you finish the readings and forums in five hours, you have four hours to work on assignments.
4. In terms of the readings, unless you are going to be tested on them, don't outline and summarize as if you were. Read them through carefully, making sure that you understand the central points and main ideas. You might jot down those central points, but, generally, if you need to refresh your memory, re-read the abstract and the summary/conclusion. You're going to be asked to apply what you read in some way, so focus on understanding, not memorizing.

2. Course Description

Catalog Description: Designing, planning, and providing library and information services to meet the educational, informational, and recreational needs of adults throughout their life span.

Course Description: Includes an overview of collection development, programming, reference services, readers' advisory services, informational and digital literacy instruction, and outreach services.

Course Objectives: Upon satisfactory completion of this course, the student will :

- Understand the need for adult services in public libraries
- Describe the various types of services for adults
- Plan and assess a variety of programs for adults
- Discuss and recommend recognized forms of popular literature
- Demonstrate cognitive and interpersonal skills necessary for the provision of adult services

Course requirements: To achieve these objectives, students are expected to:

- Commit at least 9 hours per week to this course in some combination of class participation, readings, homework, and other assignments as specified in the syllabus.
- Read and discuss the assigned materials as specified in the syllabus
- Complete and submit assignments as specified in the syllabus

3. Grading

Grading policies: All assignments are due on the dates indicated in the Course Schedule. Work submitted more than 7 days late without an acceptable excuse will be downgraded one full letter per week and may be refused.

A grade of B indicates that the student has achieved the objectives and met the requirements for the course. A grade of A indicates that the student has exceeded the requirements and demonstrated a superior understanding of the principles and concepts involved. A grade of C indicates that the student has partially met the requirements, but demonstrates an incomplete understanding of the principles and concepts involved. A grade of D indicates that the work does not meet the requirements and demonstrates a lack of understanding. A grade of F indicates that the student did not meet any of the course requirements or objectives.

3.1. Assignments

Grades will be based on:

Discussion Forums (12 @25)	300 points
Recommendations (6 @ 50)	300 points
Library Program	100 points
Resource Comparison	100 points
Final Project	200 points
TOTAL	1000 points

3.2. Grading Scale

Grading scale:

99-100%	A+
93-98.99%	A
90-92.99%	A-
87-89.99%	B+
83-86.99%	B
80-82.99%	B-
77-79.99%	C+
73-76.99%	C
70-72.99%	C-

4. Academic Misconduct/Plagiarism

Statement on Academic Misconduct: All work submitted for this course must be your own work. In accordance with University policy, academic misconduct will not be tolerated. All students are required to know and abide by the University's Policy for Academic Integrity and the LSU Student Code of Conduct. A copy of these documents may be found at: <http://www.lsu.edu/judicialaffairs> . As future librarians and information professionals, plagiarism in particular is not only academic misconduct, it is professional misconduct.

LSU Student Code of Conduct: The LSU student code of conduct explains student rights, excused absences, and what is expected of student behavior. Students are expected to understand this code as described here: <http://students.lsu.edu/saa/students/code>.

Any violations of the LSU student code will be duly reported to the Dean of Students.

Avoiding Plagiarism

5. Students with Disabilities

Information for Students with Disabilities: Louisiana State University is committed to providing reasonable accommodations for all persons with disabilities. The syllabus is available in alternate formats upon request. If you are seeking classroom accommodations under the Americans with Disabilities Act, you are required to register with Disability Services in 115 Johnston Hall. Their phone number is 225-578-5919 and website is www.lsu.edu/disability. To receive academic accommodations for this class, please obtain the proper Disability Services forms and contact me at the beginning of the semester.

6. Center for Academic Success

Academic Success: The primary ingredients of your academic success are attending class, managing your time efficiently, taking good notes, and developing good critical thinking and communication abilities. LSU has a number of excellent resources that will assist you in developing these skills. The place to begin is the Center for Academic Success (<https://www.lsu.edu/cas/index.php>). The CAS offers guidance on what learning strategies are best suited to your talents, tutoring in the basic subjects, and workshops on a variety of topics, from note taking to time management. Communication Across the Curriculum (<http://cxc.lsu.edu>) assists students in developing the communication skills necessary for academic and professional success. Finally, with respect to professional success, the LSU Olinde Career Center (<https://www.lsu.edu/careercenter/students/findajob/index.php>) can assist you with all aspects of the job search, from building a resume, writing a cover letter, and interviewing well to writing an effective thank you note, to ensure success in securing employment when you graduate from LSU.

8. General Instructions

Instructions, deadlines, etc. that apply unless stated otherwise in the assignment or forum

8.1. Discussion Forums

Unless otherwise instructed, please create a single thread with your response to all chapters or readings.

Each of your original posts should be 150-300 words, or as long as necessary.

Unless stated otherwise in the forum, your original posts are worth a 10-15 points. Responses to others' posts are worth 3-5 points. The maximum for any week is 25 points.

Forums are open from Sunday at 6:00 a.m. to the following Monday at 6:00 a.m, so you have a full week plus one day. Posts made before or after that time will not receive credit.

To be eligible for full credit for your initial posts, you must respond to the discussion forum by 6:00 a.m. Thursday. Credit drops to 90%, then 80%, then 70% by 6:00 a.m. Monday -- but you still get something, so post. Initial posts are graded on both content and timeliness. Comments on the posts of others is based only on content. You can earn the maximum points with a few excellent posts, with several average posts, many mediocre posts, or some combination thereof. Posts which say nothing more than some variation of "I agree" earn no points. A post must add something original to the discussion in order to earn at least 1 point.

You can manage your forums (subscription, frequency & type of e-mails) through the list of Forums in Activities. You can also set preferences for all forums in all Moodle courses by following instructions at

<https://grok.lsu.edu/Article.aspx?articleid=18452>

8.2. Submitting Assignments

This applies to all assignments except Recommendations, which are copied and pasted into the text box.

File names should be YourLastName_[Assignmentname]. (Do not include the [])

Files may be submitted in .rtf, .wpd, .docx. Do not submit as PDF.

Follow your style manual for correct formatting of citations and the bibliography. Please use Notes-Bibliography style (endnotes preferred).

Remember that you must cite the source of your information, regardless of whether you quote, paraphrase or summarize.

All assignments must be double-spaced, in 12-point font, with 1-inch margins on all sides.

8.3. Readers' Advisory Recommendation Assignments

Beginning the 8th week of class, you will be practicing making Readers' Advisory Recommendations in small groups of 3 or 4. Each of those weeks, you will meet as a group at a time or times of your convenience. These may be Zoom meetings, chat meetings, or even conducted via e-mail. You may meet as many times and in as many formats as necessary. I suggest an initial meeting early each week, with follow-up meetings as necessary.

Each of you will take turns role playing the reader, the readers' advisory librarian, and the observer(s). You will each play all three roles every week. Each week, the readers' advisory librarian will conduct a readers' advisory interview with the reader and then recommend two titles of popular genre fiction in the genre for that week. When it's your turn to be the reader, do your best to answer the questions and provide other information from the perspective of someone who enjoys reading in this genre, even if you don't. You might think about a friend who does like this genre and even enlist the friend to assist you during the interview -- or to take your place as the reader. You must play the readers' advisory librarian and the observer, of course.

The reader will then rate those titles for how well they meet the reader's interest and explain the rating. The observer will make comments or suggestions which might be useful in conducting the next week's interview.

I suggest that you conduct the interviews early in the week, then make your recommendations a few days later, and finally, rate the suggestions by the end of the week. For example, you could meet via Zoom over the weekend, then e-mail recommendations on Wednesday, and ratings on Friday. The assignment will be due, as usual, on Monday at 6:00 a.m.

Each student will turn in a brief citation (author and title only) of the two recommendations they made, an explanation of why they selected them for their reader, the reader's rating and comments, as well as any relevant comments from the observer(s) and any personal reflections on the experience.

These must be works of popular genre fiction, not literary fiction and not classics. If you read it for an English class, it probably is not acceptable. If it won a major literary book award (Man Booker, Pulitzer, etc.), it is not acceptable. If the author has won major literary awards, the work is unlikely to be popular genre fiction. Recommendations of literary fiction and classic works will not receive credit. If there are any questions, ask.

Works may only be recommended once by each readers' advisory librarian.
